

BAILEY ROSE and ELAN UMHOLTZ - Incorporating Digital Media in HZB3M and HZT4U

Through an exploration of philosophy in film and print media, this workshop will offer an overview of various digital media and online apps (think G-Suite & beyond!) that can be used as pedagogical tools in the classroom, as well as in the production of student work. We will explore the inclusion of digital media and online apps for presenting information, engaging students in inquiry and in the creation of digital media to both enhance and communicate their learning.

Bailey Rose is a Law and Philosophy teacher at Central Toronto Academy. She is an engaging supporter of Blended Classrooms and has provided instruction in the Toronto District School Board in both day school and ConEd through eLearning using D2L. She has written World Studies & Social Science curriculum for the TDSB's Equity Department as well as completed course revisions for TDSB's eLearning. She is an advocate for the inclusion of Indigenous world views and perspectives in education.

Elan Umholtz is ACL of World Studies and the Social Sciences at Central Toronto Academy. She has worked with TDSB eLearning in both day school and ConEd and is an active supporter of Blended Classrooms. She is currently a DLL Mentor and has run many workshops and PD sessions for staff on incorporating the Global Competencies into course design, navigation and utilization of digital tools including D2L and Google Apps to benefit both teaching and learning.
